

Panama lays fiber optic cable

Overview

In major cities such as Panama City, Colón, and David, fiber-to-the-home (FTTH) networks are actively being built. Providers offer urban residents plans from 20 to 300 Mbps at prices from $25 to $100, making fast internet accessible to many families. The Latin America and the Caribbean-focused firm this week announced it has been selected by El Salvador's telecom regulator SIGET (General Superintendence of Electricity and Telecommunications) to construct and deploy. Just like the canal connects the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans for trade, Panama's subsea fiber optic cables connect continents for global communication. Stick around to discover how this tiny country keeps the world wired—and why it's more than just a tropical paradise. Sparkle, the first international service provider in Italy and among the top ten global operators, and Trans Ocean Network, a Panamanian telecommunications company, have agreed to form a strategic joint venture in Panama for the construction of an open landing and connectivity center that aims to.
